

TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE TO THE CONSULTATIVE COUNCIL
BETWEEN CENTRAL AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Context

Albania has made considerable progress in the decentralization agenda. Since 2014, the Government of Albania has undertaken the administrative and territorial reform, resulting in municipalities of a much bigger size. This reform, in line with the European Charter of Local Self-Government, aimed at reaching economies of scale and cost efficiency gains of Local Government Units (LGUs), with the ultimate goal of providing better services to citizens. An important step forward has been the establishment of the Consultative Council between the central government and local self-government in 2017, which serves as an institutional platform for dialogue between central government and local and regional authorities, providing the latter with a forum for advocacy. As the European Commission’s Country Report 2020 for Albania states, “while policy and legal discussions would benefit from an earlier involvement of the local level, local government units and their associations rarely manage to come to the table with consolidated positions.” This project helped enhance the effectiveness and efficiency of the Consultative Council, by increasing municipalities’s role in decision making processes.
